PWA REVISION HALTS COUNTY SCHOOL PLANS

136 Projects In State, Four In County, Will Be Affected

FINANCIAL AID IS WITHDRAWN

Lisbon May have to Abandon $70,000 Gymnasium Proposal

LISBON, May 12.—A change in PWA policy by the government, characterized by the state department of education as apparently a "polite but firm method of discontinuing the present public works program," has halted—at least temporarily—136 school building projects in the state, including four in Columbiana county.

The change in policy eliminates the provision under which the government contributed 45 per cent of the total cost. Instead, the PWA now contributes only the actual relief labor and demands that the school districts concerned post securities for the entire cost. PWA later rebates the school district 15 per cent of the construction cost.

Wages to Relief Only

The clause regarding relief labor is interpreted to mean that the government will pay wages only to relief clients. Since construction work of this nature calls for a large amount of skilled labor and because there are few, if any, skilled workers on relief rolls at present, the proviso, in effect, forces applicants to shoulder nearly all labor expense.

Columbiana county school authorities have notified the state department of education they will be unable to proceed with the construction of four county projects under the new terms. In every instance bond issues have been passed authorizing payment of the school district of 55 per cent of the total cost. Under the new contracts they will be required to defray approximately 80 per cent and, in addition, raise the entire amount, subject to later rebate.

Lisbon high school's combined auditorium-gymnasium, sanctioned last March by the voters at a special election, is one of the largest projects in the county affected by the revision. A $35,000 bond issue was approved at the election, providing for the school district's share of the cost. Unless the Public Works Administration rescinds its action, it will be impossible for the board of education to continue its plans for the improvement.

The new PWA setup will not affect progress of the construction of the new Leticia High school building, however. School authorities point out that funds have already been set aside for the completion of this project.

Other county projects include two four-room buildings in Yellow Creek township for which a $48,000 bond issue was approved last November. An addition to the Smithville school calling for a $9,000 bond issue and approved five years ago is another. The fourth project involves a proposed centralized school.

A young people's rally was slated on tonight's program, with part of the program being held at the Memorial building. A women's missionary session was a feature this afternoon.

The concluding feature of the two-day event will be a banquet, sponsored by the men at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Holy Trinity English Lutheran church.

Among the speakers to be heard at the association meeting are: Rev. A. D. Laman of Massillon; Rev. Donald Lane, Alliance; Rev. Morris, Granville; Rev. David Owlhart, Wooster; Rev. E. E. Barnhart, Wooster; Rev. J. H. Satterfield, Rev. H. C. Caviness and Rev. Robert J. Kees, of Canton; Rev. E. E. Nellis, Girard; Dr. T. F. Chambers; Rev. R. C. Gould, New Philadelphia; Rev. E. L. Greer, and Rev. Westphal.

Merrill and Lambie will hop for the United States shortly after dawn tomorrow with pictures of the coronation of King George VI.

KING, MOTHER WANT WEDDING TO BE PUBLIC

Determined That Britain Accord Windsor Fair Treatment

PRIVATE AFFAIR, GOVERNMENT VIEW

Duke and Wally, As Result, Postpone Nuptials At George's Request

(By Associated Press)
MONTS, France, May 12.—The Duke of Windsor and Wallis Warfield will postpone their wedding until early June, friends said today, because of "certain differences between the royal family and the British government."

The disclosure came while the duke sat before a radio listening to brother-King George's coronation, the coronation that would have been his own but for his abdication to permit his marriage to Wallis Warfield.

Assemble Before Radio

Shortly before the broadcast told of George's and Queen Elizabeth's procession starting for Westminster abbey, the duke, Mrs. Warfield and guests left their Chateau de Candie retreat and assembled before the receiving set in the nearby hunting lodge.

The dreary, rain-drenched grounds of Candie were deserted and only one policeman was on duty. There were no spectators. The rain stopped at noon as the historic ceremonies reached their climax in London.

An associate of the duke said he did not know what the exact differences were, but he hinted that King George and Queen Mother Mary were at odds with the government in their determination that Britain should accord Edward "fair treatment" at the wedding.

"A number of members of the royal family believe the marriage should be public," this informant said. "The government insists it should be a private affair."

George and Mary's stand, he added, was that Edward, as a former king and former Prince of Wales who served his country for many years, is entitled to great consideration.

King Sends Special Request

King George sent Edward a special request to postpone the wedding until the differences are settled, it was disclosed.

The request was delivered by air.

MASONS RALLY IN YOUNGSTOWN

Five Ranking Officers of Salem Commandery Named Delegates to Council Reunion

Five ranking officers of Salem commandery No. 42, Knights Templar, have been named delegates to the first annual reunion of the Council for Templar Advancement at Youngstown Monday evening, June 7.

They are Arch Wentz, commander; F. J. Eckstein, Earl Miller, George Hempstead and George Lozier. Eckstein is president of the district, known as No. 9, and Judson C. King of Lisbon, also a member of the Salem commandery, will be honorary chairman for the meeting. Karl Howell of Youngstown is active chairman.

Past commanders will confer the Order of the Temple degree and cities to be represented at the reunion include East Liverpool, Salem, Youngstown, Warren, Niles, Painesville, Ashtabula and Conneaut.

The event will feature a dinner in the Youngstown Masonic temple at 6:30, followed by a theater party. The ladies will be guests.

As a special feature of the event, Eckstein, captain general of Salem commandery, will take a drill squad to the reunion, composed entirely of past commanders of Salem commandery.

Coronation Topics Listed At Library

Miss Alice Gladden, public librarian, announced today that a number of books and articles on phases of the English coronation, as well as information about the new king and queen of England and their family have been placed on file at the library for subscribers.

In the group is a volume containing a year's issues of "The Penny Magazine," a weekly publication in London in 1838. The paper has one issue devoted to a description of the coronation, a history of the succession of English kings and the significance of the ceremonies.

The book is the property of Mrs. Hannah Maule, East Third st., who placed it in the library for a special coronation exhibit this week.

In Spotlight As British Hold Coronation Rites

These people are in the spotlight today as Great Britain crowns a new king, George VI. The coronation ceremonies this morning seated George and Queen Elizabeth, with special honors also accorded their daughter, Princess Elizabeth.

The Duke of Windsor, who gave up his crown for "the woman I love," Wallis Warfield, in the meantime has postponed his marriage at the request of the new king, who, it is reported, differs with the British government on Windsor's wedding. The king and Queen Mother Mary want a public wedding, declaring Edward should be accorded "fair treatment." The government, on the other hand, holds that the wedding should be strictly private.

Judge Woodside pointed out in his talk the danger in not making definite provision for loved ones by the head of the family so that after his or her death they may be properly taken care of.

Little Princesses "Steal Show" Until Parents Arrive

Margaret, 6, Wriggles, Squirms, Wiggles Her Ears, Sits On Hands—As Any Other Little Girl

(By Associated Press.)
LONDON, May 12.—(By telephone from inside Westminster Abbey.)—Little Princess Elizabeth and her six-year-old sister, Margaret Rose, "stole" the great abbey show today until the arrival of the royal parents for the coronation ceremony.

Little Margaret drew special attention from the glittering assemblage as she entered the royal family box, her blue eyes big as saucers and tiny, silver-slipped feet dancing with excitement.

Princess Elizabeth was dwarfed at the side of the regal Queen Mother Mary, who appeared in stately grandeur with five ropes of diamonds—valued at approximately $2,000,000—around her neck and every inch of her white gown blazing with jewels.

Squirms and Wriggles

Margaret Rose squirmed and wriggled like any six-year-old in Sunday school class. She looked over the printed service book before her, but quickly lost interest. There were no pictures in it. Then she stuck a finger in her eye, wiggled her ears and leaned over, rubbing her finger up and down Elizabeth's arm, tickling her.

Elizabeth shook her off with a grown-up frown and nudged her to sit still.

Margaret sat very still for a whole minute, then wriggled again. As the organ boomed and the choir prepared for their majesties' entry, Margaret was all eyes towards the great west door.

The whole abbey congregation—a glittering host of peers and peeresses, rulers and diplomats from the ends of the earth—stood up as the procession of church and state surrounding their majesties proceeded up the nave.

Little Margaret, just tall enough to get her chin over the front of the royal box, rested her chin on the edge and rolled her head from side to side.

After the anointment ceremony, which is the most sacred of the whole coronation to churchmen, the king walked from the coronation chair dressed in pure white stockings, breeches and shirt—at that moment the simplest garbed feet Reiter, 7 to 3, and 7 to 4. His two straight victories made him Columbia school champion and won for him one of The News medal.

In addition to the Pascos, Bob and Dick, and Reiter, little Johnny Farus from fourth grade also competed in the Columbia finals. Johnny won one match and lost two as did Dick Pasco.

Scores of the Columbia matches were:
Farus, 7, Dick Pasco 5; Reiter 7, Bob Pasco 3; Reiter 7, Farus 5; Dick Pasco 7, Reiter 1; Bob Pasco 7, Dick Pasco 5; Bob Pasco 7, Farus 2; Bob Pasco 7, Reiter 3; Bob Pasco 7, Reiter 4.

The new champion of Columbia school is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Pasco of 315 West Pershing st. He is husky for a 12-year old boy, has black hair and his complexion too, is dark. He claims enjoying marbles, but says of late that playing baseball has cut in on his practice at marbles.

Bob is the second school champion to be named in The News tournament. Tommy Leslie was selected as the best marble shooter at Reilly school last Friday.

TAKES CROWN IN PAGEANTRY OF CENTURIES

Forty-One-Year Old Sovereign Assumes Rule at Solemn Ritual In View of 7,500 Peers, Rulers, Diplomats, Statesmen
MILLIONS CHEER OUTSIDE ABBEY

Crush of Humanity Lines Six-Mile Procession Route; Three Score Spectators Faint and One Youth Dies

By FRANK H. KING.

LONDON, May 12.—The empire that no night can darken crowned and consecrated its ruler, George VI, and his Scottish Queen Elizabeth today in a solemn and beautiful ritual from down the proud centuries.

Peak of the greatest show in a thousand years, the Archbishop of Canterbury, venerable, erect, gave to the new king the crown that symbolizes the rule of 500,000,000 souls in almost a quarter of the earth.

That was at 12:30 p. m. within the old grey walls of Westminster abbey.

Across the channel in a Touraine hunting lodge Edward of Windsor, the man whose abdication made George VI king, listened by the side of Wallis Warfield to a broadcast of the ritual.

Then—just at the peak of solemn abbey consecration, his friends disclosed that he and Mrs. Warfield have delayed their marriage until early June, because the royal family, desiring a public wedding, has disagreed with the British government, which wants a strictly private one.

Speaking slowly and clearly, with no hint of impediment, the grave-eyed monarch in the abbey accepted the throne of Britain and pledged himself to a just and honest rule.

The two-hour ceremony was climaxed when the 41-year-old sovereign was lifted reverently to the throne, in the sight of 7,500 peers and peeresses, foreign rulers, diplomats and statesmen from all over the world.

Outside the abbey, a million or more cheered.

Guns in the Tower of London boomed.

Church bells pealed to signal that the priceless jeweled crown of St. Edward had been placed on the brow of George VI.

Queen Elizabeth then was anointed and crowned in a briefer ceremony immediately following the coronation of the king.

There was not a visible flaw in the coronation of the king.

At just half past twelve, (6:30 a. m. in Salem) the archbishop and a solemn hush in the splendor of the abbey scene, lifted the jeweled symbol of the British throne, held it with outstretched arms towards the heavens and placed it gently on the head of the man who chose to rule in his brother's stead.

Throughout the ceremony, 11-year-old Princess Elizabeth, helmsman presumptive to the throne, gravely and intently watched the impressive ritual which may someday make her Britain's first reigning queen since Victoria.

But Elizabeth's little sister, blue-eyed Princess Margaret Rose, too young to maintain a lasting decorum, squirmed and wriggled like any six-year-old in Sunday school class.

Outside the abbey, in the crush of humanity lining every inch of space along the six-mile procession route, more than three score spectators fainted and one youth died, in a fight in Piccadilly circus in which 20 others were injured.

Dull, overcast skies, momentarily threatening a drizzle, darkened the glitter of jewels and the gleam of bright-hued uniforms in the coronation.

SUSPENSE

President Roosevelt will return to his White House desk this week and a country which has depended heavily on his personal leadership for more than four years will be looking for answers to these questions:

Will Mr. Roosevelt's widely advertised and generally acknowledged skill as a political leader prove great enough to enable him to close the widening breach in his political following?

Will Mr. Roosevelt, as party leader, be able to move a confused and balky congress out of the doldrums in which it has been fretting for four months?

Will Mr. Roosevelt reveal at last the outline of the legislative program which he has said cannot be submitted to congress unless the supreme court of the United States is packed in advance to insure a favorable reception for it?

During the days while the President was enjoying a vacation in the Gulf of Mexico, it has seemed clear to large numbers of his countrymen that he must have taken the vacation to enable him to think about these matters with a minimum of interruption and a maximum of the clarity which absence of interruption guarantees.

There is no longer any reason to doubt that a turning point in Mr. Roosevelt's presidency has been reached. His leadership faces the hardest test it has been given during four years when the presidency was an ordeal of one momentous decision after another. For the first time, Mr. Roosevelt is confronted with a situation which cannot be untangled by recourse to reminding congressmen that his personal popularity is the best guide for their actions.

THE TEACHER

Valuable information probably will be gained in the investigations of the Hindenburg disaster. For the first time, an airship accident has occurred under circumstances favorable to a thorough study.

Moving pictures and still pictures show the ship's destruction in its various stages. Many persons witnessed the disaster. Even though the actual cause of the fire may never be narrowed down to one final factor, it probably will be reduced to two or three major possibilities.

Experience is the best teacher. Airship builders always have known about the theoretical action of hydrogen, but now they know what actually happens to a hydrogen-filled ship when it catches fire. Like all great disasters, the burning of the Hindenburg will bring some compensation in a wider margin of safety for the future.

The conclusion that hydrogen must be discarded will not go unchallenged. Hydrogen still is the lightest gas. The problem is to make it safe. Germany thought it had solved that problem; the Hindenburg's destruction proved it hadn't.

Experience is the best teacher. Airship builders always have known about the theoretical action of hydrogen. They know now what actually happens when a hydrogen-filled ship catches fire. They know, incidentally, why Germany, whose airship industry is a potent military factor, would like to have helium.

But helium, the fact remains, is rare and, therefore, expensive. It is heavier than hydrogen. It would be inadvisable, furthermore, for the United States, which controls most of the world's supply, to make available to Germany a gas which would give it a tremendous military advantage.

Germany's problem to make hydrogen safe for commercial airships, if possible, or, if that be too much, to convince the world that it would not misuse helium, if that important gas were sold to it.

We can't feel very sorry for the Spaniards. If they hadn't financed Columbus in his expedition to discover America then we wouldn't be struggling now with a $35,000,000,000 deficit.—La Cygne Journal.

Experience doesn't always teach wisdom. Always there is the thought that the fool thing can be done next time when circumstances are more favorable.—Jack Warwick.

A cub reporter confided to us today that he knows a rewrite man who could put "Gone With the Wind" on a post card.—Washington Post.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, May 12.—The big and noisy nude revues included with the meal in the $2.50 dinner cabarets have proved to be the most profitable entertainment ventures on Broadway this winter. And they are seldom patronized by New Yorkers save on opening nights. The originator was N. T. G.

They are designed for and dedicated to the round hair cut visitor. The intent is a pretentious effort to create a slice of Parisian wickedness for those in town for a fling. The scantily clad coryphees are from the French shows and ventilate the co-la-motif coquettishly.

These excursions sound low tariffed but are often far from so. The deluxe meal, not advertised, is $3.50 and one is supposed always to order cocktails and wine or be snubbed by the waiters. The $2.50 dinner tables are too far from the stage to enjoy the show.

And every device is employed to shuck down the bank rolls of the outlanders. There are enchanting sellers of flowers, French long-legged dolls and a half dozen gimcracks upped to ultra notches. A party of five may easily run up a check of $50.

There is something soothing about expert phrasing. I think nothing quite compares with Carl Sandburg's: "The fog came on little cat feet." On a rainy night I have found nothing equal to a re-reading of Washington Irving's "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow." That description of Ichabod Crane, for instance: "He was a huge feeder and, though lank, had the dilatory powers of an anaconda." Also: "She was a blooming lass of fresh eighteen, plump as a partridge, ripe melting and as rosy-cheeked as one of her father's peaches." And last but not least that superb description of old Balthus Van Tassel's farm: "A great elm tree at the foot of which bubbled up a spring. The vast barn, every crevice of which seemed bursting with farm treasures. Swallows and martins skimmed, twittering about the eaves. Rows of pigeons, some swelling and cooing and bowing about their dames and a stately squadron of snowy geese riding an adjoining pond, conveying whole flocks of ducks. And guinea fowls fretting about with their peevish, discontented cries."

And gourmets will beam at this Irving fancy: "The pedagogue's mouth watered. In his devouring mind's eye he pictured every roasting pig running about with a belly full of pudding and an apple in his mouth. The pigeons were snugly put to bed in a comfortable pie and tucked in with a coverlet of crust. The geese were swimming in their own gravy."

One notices that there is almost invariably a slowing up of motorists passing through the serene locale of "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow." So great was the impress of Irving's description that one almost expects to see a headless horseman tearing by. I have no fear whatever of ghosts, but passing the famous old graveyard coming from the Sleepy Hollow club I am always glad when the car is far away and beyond the scene. As I say I don't believe in spooks but a row of tombstones at night gives me the ork-orks just the same.

The Flea Circus on West 42nd street has been the longest continuous run of any amusement in the theatrical district. It has been open from noon until midnight now for nearly 20 years. The flea performers last about 10 weeks and a new company is always in waiting. The fleas are not actually trained but controlled by almost invisible wires and most people who see them come away looking a bit silly but the very idea of a trained flea has an irresistible appeal. Too, there is amusement in the engaging patter of the Professor with German dialect who calls for "Max, my favorite flea," and "Lady Lola, the queen of fleadom."

Dwight Fiske, the urban chanter of ribald songs to society stay-outs, ran into a snag for a London engagement to sing for the American hordes during the coronation. He was refused permission to ventilate his oft-times double entendre lyrics. There are whispers that Fiske was one of the favorite entertainers of the so-called "Prince of Wales set" in Manhattan and that in the new order surrounding the throne they do not want any back-wash of the old Fiske away from the piano offers no suggestion of his unusual art. Middle aged and rather stern visaged, he might be the president of the First National bank in Keokuk. Second thought: Maybe it was all a press agent stunt.

Had Simms, the bridge expert, and his wife, sticking around each other so closely at a party, inspired George Kaufman, as they left arm in arm, to murmur: "There go the Siamese Sims."

HEALTH

COLDS

A FRIEND of mine says he cannot quite understand why doctors are unable to prevent the common cold. "Why don't they discover the cause of this universal complaint and develop a cure? Surely if the causes of diphtheria and other diseases are known, why not the cause of the common cold?"

have been going on for years. Despite this, the common cold continues as a menace to humanity. It is one of the great medical problems.

The simple cold may be the forerunner of such serious ailments as pneumonia, bronchitis, influenza or even tuberculosis. It is the most expensive and common affliction we have. Surveys in large industries show it to be the most common cause of absence from work. It greatly interferes with the earning capacity and efficiency of the individual. Since most school authorities demand that children with colds remain at home, this affliction tends to backwardness in school work.

Actual Cause Unknown
Though the actual cause of the cold is not known, we are familiar with certain facts about it. We know that many colds could be avoided if proper precautions were taken. The common cold is highly contagious or infectious, spreading quickly from one individual to another. The germs responsible for it are found in the nasal secretions of the sufferer; coughing and sneezing carry millions of them into the air. In consequence, the disease in one person quickly infects others.

All health authorities advise that a person with a cold stay home and avoid contact with others. Bear in mind that quiet, rest, warmth and proper care shorten the duration of the attack and prevent the probability of serious complications. In addition to the great benefits to the patient, this practice will protect others.

Avoid Crowded Places
Do not neglect a cough or cold. Guard your fellow citizens by avoiding crowded places and close contact with others if you have a cold. Cover every cough and sneeze. This will prevent spraying into the air the dangerous germs of the disease. Wash your hands several times a day, and avoid passing the germs to others by means of objects that have been handled by you.

In addition to the few rules I have outlined, it is well to remember that good general health is our best weapon against contracting a cold. When we are run down and in poor health, we are more susceptible to this disease. Plenty of fresh air, exercise, adequate hours of rest and sleep, as well as a well-balanced and varied diet, are other preventative measures that must not be overlooked.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send an addressed, stamped envelope with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland, New York City.

PWA REVISION HALTS SCHOOLS

136 Projects In State, Four In County, Will Be Affected

at Unity village which the voters authorized last November when they acted on a $25,475 issue. The government, under the original program, was to have contributed $23,875 in this instance.

In a recent letter to Senator Vic Donahy, the state department of education protested the change in policy, stating that fully half the 136 PWA school projects in Ohio already were under construction. The letter indicated it would be necessary to abandon the majority of projects, regardless of their construction stage, unless the action were revoked.

Starting with the statement that the change in Public Works Administration policy appeared to be a polite but firm method of discontinuing the present public works program, the letter pointed out that the revision practically compelled school districts to re-submit bond issues to the voters at almost double the original amounts. The change completely invalidated existing bond issues, the letter indicated.

Pessimistic Over Outcome
Local school authorities were pessimistic regarding the outcome of the appeal and were inclined to regard the change as part of the government's retrenchment program.

"The best we can hope for is a modification of the order rendering it inapplicable to projects for which bond issues have been approved," County Superintendent W. F. Roberts stated Tuesday. George Porter, clerk of the Lisbon board of education, expressed the same opinion.

Coroner Rules Man Alcoholism Victim

SEBRING, May 12.—Acute alcoholism was the verdict given today by Mahoning County Coroner D. H. Hauser in the death of John E. Flynn, 62, of East Alliance, who was found dead Monday afternoon in a vacant building in East Alliance.

His death occurred in the same house where two other men met a similar fate in the last two years.

Theater Attractions

Every so often the film industry becomes aware of the screen possibilities of some great classical author's works. Dickens, Shakespeare and others have furnished the material for some of the best movies produced. Now Rudyard Kipling steps in with his "Toomai of the Elephants," which has been made into a film. "The Elephant Boy," with a little 12-year-old Indian lad in the leading role. The picture will be seen Thursday only at the State theater.

Story of Brown Boy

The beloved Kipling story tells of a little brown boy, son of a great trainer of elephants, who steps into his father's position as a mahout. Sabu, the child star, and an elephant named Iravatha, are the central figures of the story. Sabu's screen father is killed while he, his son and a great party of hunters are staging a round-up. The child is to be sent back to his people, but with the help of his friend the elephant he convinces the hunters that he is as able a mahout as his illustrious father, called Toomai the Great.

The story, though designed for children, has a great appeal for adults, who will find that it has lost none of its charm in its transition to the screen. Amazingly fine photography, able directing and well-handled animal scenes make the picture outstanding.

Stampede Scenes Good

Some of the finest scenes in the picture are the stampede of the great elephant herd, the capture of the wild elephants, and a sequence in which the father of the boy is killed by a tiger. Robert Flaherty, English explorer-director, who was responsible for such films as "Nanook of the North," "Tabu," "Moana" and "Man of Aran," also directed "Elephant Boy."

Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea will be seen for the last time tonight at the State in "Internes Can't Take Money."

A Hepalong Cassidy story, "Hills of Old Wyoming," with William Boyd as Cassidy, is the current feature at the Grand, concluding Thursday night.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE...

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning! "Rin" to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk, and the world looks punk.
Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Plans Are Outlined For Neighborhood House Celebration

L. Frank Smith and Rev. R. D. Walter of Salem, Rev. J. M. Cox of Lisbon and Dr. J. V. Stephens of Alliance were among the presbytery delegates yesterday to the luncheon meeting of the directors of the Campbell Christian Neighborhood House. The meeting was held in the Neighborhood House and was presided over by Chairman W. H. Hudnut of Youngstown.

In the report of the superintendent, Rev. Zoltan Irshay, attention was called to the importance of religion as a unifying force in such a polyglot community. Campbell having 15,000 inhabitants of some 21 different nationalities. Over 90 per cent of them are employed in the mills of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company. Each summer, Rev. Irshay conducts a Bible school of some 600 children.

The main item of business was the consideration of plans for the tenth anniversary of the Neighborhood House to be celebrated October 18. Since the work in Campbell is the responsibility of the church at large, all agencies of the church will be represented on that occasion. The main speakers will be Dr. W. P. Shriver of New York City and Dr. Louis H. Evans of Pittsburgh.

James S. Wick and Dr. Paul W. Gauss of Youngstown, and Mrs. Zoltan Irshay were selected to speak in behalf of the work in Campbell at the Ohio Synod which meets in Wooster June 21.

The resignation of Dr. W. H. Hudnut as chairman of the board was regretfully accepted to take effect the last of June.

PROBATE JUDGE QUOTA SPEAKER

C.M. Woodside Urges Preparation for "Life After Death"

form for those coming after us. "Laws cannot prevent original damage, but are founded upon the wisdom of those who have lived; therefore, laws always follow damage for future benefit insofar as possible. Everyone is responsible for those around him in the family, community, state and nation and it is the individual's responsibility to leave written instructions after him for the benefit of his family, partners and community."

Judge Woodside pointed out that a wise business man or woman does not go away on any sort of trip to be gone any length of time without making full provision for the case of his or her family and business, yet some make the long journey from which there is no return, without making any provision.

Do It Yourself
The speaker urged that each individual attend to the matters providing for the care of those left behind, himself, since he is familiar with the particular conditions surrounding him and is in much better position to handle them by written instructions he leaves than any court can with set laws.

He said, "Family feuds are the worst of all wars, causing hatreds where there has been love, all caused by carelessness. It follows that it is not the act of a good citizen to be the cause of bitter strife after death."

Judge Woodside described a number of incidents illustrating what happens to property after death, how quickly property which was thought ample for the care of families can be dissipated into nothing after death, especially in the case of business partnerships.

Accidents Common
He also emphasized that in this day of "common accidental death," many parents are killed together or survive each other only by a few days, it is necessary to make provision for the guardianship of children since the individual knows better who to have guide them than any judge can possibly know.

He ended with the statement, "It is not the judge or the law that is at fault in the tragedies that so often occur after death, but the individual who was too careless, too busy to make the wiser provision which he alone of all people in the world could make in his particular set of circumstances."

Judge Woodside was accompanied by his wife, the former Effie Bloom of Salem, and an aunt, Mrs. R. L. Slagle.

Mrs. Woodside was formerly a member of the Youngstown Quota club.

CORONATION KEYS STYLE MODES . Two Dressy Street Models Feature Fashion Previews

By MARIE MAROT

THIS is the year of the coronation and British designers are doing themselves proud along every line of the far-flung fashion front. In particular, Norman Hartnell bolsters his already established reputation with the two dressy street models shown here today. The broad-shouldered upper figure displays a black cloque ensemble, refreshing in its apparent chic. The fabric is cut on the cross, and the hat is trimmed with the same brilliant print that makes the suit a joy to behold. The lower ensemble is another Hartnell creation and consists of a gown of print crepe in scarlet and white with a coat of black wool. The frock is appliqued over a band of black crepe at the hem and the coat sleeves are trimmed with print appliques.

person in the whole abbey. Little Princess Margaret Rose, obviously tired after watching the ceremony for an hour, yawned several times, put her elbow up on the front box and rested her head on her arm.

Find New Interest
As the crowning approached, the two princesses suddenly found a new interest.

Twenty or thirty little page boys appeared carrying coronets for the peers and dukes around the throne. Their great moment came when they put little coronets on their heads at the same time the archbishop crowned their mother, Queen Elizabeth.

Princess Margaret turned her coronet around and around, so she would not get the hind part in front, finally got it straight and then put it on quickly.

She looked up at her older sister, then at her aunt, the princess royal, Countess of Harewood. Still not quite sure she had it just right, Princess Margaret pushed her coronet to one side just a bit, then set back on her hands to watch the conclusion of the ceremonial for her parents.

Crown Jewels Worth $25,000,000

Rare gems whose intrinsic worth is enhanced by their historic value, estimated at $25,000,000, and the crown jewels of Great Britain. Possibly the stone with the most eventful history is the Black Prince ruby, an egg-sized magnificent gem in the crown of state. Two kings died to possess this jewel and countless others have had their fortunes entwined in its fate. Other stones of fabulous value, including the famous Star of Africa, a 516-carat diamond, largest in the world, cut from the Cullinan stone, make up the crown jewels—the coronation crown, sword of state, royal orb, royal scepter.

nation procession. A heavy fog which shrouded the city throughout the night lifted, however, at daybreak.

At the climactic moment of the crowning, a fanfare of trumpets, a sudden-bursting tumult of applause and the swelling cry of "God save the king!" signalled the event to dense-packed hundreds of thousands outside.

The cry was caught and echoed over the empire's capital, while radio, wireless and trans-Atlantic cables and telephones swept the tidings to millions scattered over the face of the earth.

A salute of 62 guns at the Tower of London and 42 guns in St. James park boomed forth, and in the streets the crowds stood in silence, with heads bared.

At the conclusion of the coronation service, the king and queen remained in the abbey for luncheon, before leaving at 2:15 p. m. for the long homeward procession to Buckingham palace to receive the acclaim of millions.

Though slightly smaller than anticipated, the crowd was nevertheless the greatest known to London.
It poured into the coronation route in a noisy, singing, dancing, shouting cavalcade, engulfing all transportation facilities and turning the streets into seething ribbons of humanity.

It was a joyous, rollicking crowd, imbued with a carnival spirit which the leaden skies could not dampen.
It was a crowd which emerged ghost-like out of the night, with thousands sleeping out in Hyde park, on the streets and even in the gutters, then breakfasting on the curbstones to maintain their points of vantage.

By all odds, it was the greatest show on earth.

plans by Lord Brownlow, former attendant to Edward, and one other Englishman Sunday.

Windsor accepted the request, thereby delaying the tentative plans for a wedding soon. The duke and Mrs. Wallis still are working over an invitation list, and it was considered highly uncertain whether the Duke of Kent or other members of the royal family would attend.

The duke's bride-to-be arose at 8:45 a. m., and immediately went to the kitchen of the Chateau de Cande to see how preparations for luncheon were progressing.

The duke was still sleeping an hour later as heavy rain fell in the Touraine section.

The coronation day luncheon probably will be served in a hunting lodge adjoining the chateau where an American-made radio set was installed so the duke and his bride-to-be might hear coronation broadcasts.

Without a single outward sign of regret, uncrowned Edward seemed content as the almost final scene of the drama of empire in which he once held the central role was enacted.

Formal announcement of the engagement of Windsor and Mrs. Warfield, just before the coronation of King George VI, gave an added example of Edward's steadfast adherence to his own fateful decision.

Last Hindrance Removed

The bestowal of the crown on George removed the last hindrance to Windsor's marriage with Mrs.
Warfield.

Still a loyal member of the royal family and a faithful subject of the new king, Edward couched his telephoned wishes for success to George last night with congratulations to Queen Elizabeth.

Finally, he spoke for a few moments to Queen Mother Mary.

Today, while George received the acclaim of the empire which might have been his, Edward remained alone with Mrs. Warfield and their American friends.

The duke, nevertheless, showed great interest in the crown which he once hoped to retain along with Mrs. Warfield's love but gave up when forced to decide between the throne and a wife of his own choosing.

Edward presided at the dials of a radio bringing in all the sounds of the London coronation, and tonight he is expected literally to see the ceremony. A motion picture of the London street scenes and the actual coronation in the abbey was reported to have been ordered especially for Windsor.

The 6,000 feet of film—six times
the length of an ordinary news reel —were expected to be rushed to Monts by airplane as soon as the ceremony ended.

Crowning Ignored By Italian Papers

ROME, May 12. — Italian newspapers completely ignored the day's biggest news story—the coronation of King George VI.

The only published dispatch that contained a hint of the historic ceremonies in London came from Dublin. That told of police dispersing a crowd demonstrating against the "coronation of an English king for Ireland."

A special coronation service was held in the English church
Rome. The British ambassador, Sir Eric Drummond and his staff attended.

Morris Hammers Out Five Hits To Lead Salem China In Win Over Nobil Shoes

E. Brudery Allows Only One Hit In Pitching Demings to 4-0 Victory Over Salem News; Numerous Errors Mark Class A League Games

The big bat of George Morris, southpaw infielder for the Salem Chinas, is evidently going to be stronger than ever in the Class A softball league this season.

Morris, who finished second in individual batting last year with a percentage of .409, made a brilliant start for batting honors this year as he hammered out five hits in five trips to the plate to lead the Salem Chinas to a 12 to 6 victory over Nobil's Shoes at Centennial park last evening.

His hitting performance shared honors on the Class A program with the pitching of E. Brudery of Demings, who gave out only one hit and struck out ten batters in blanking the Salem News, 4 to 0.

Brudery, formerly with the Washington Blues in the senior circuit two years ago, tossed a fast-breaking curve ball that was hit by only two news batters during a five-inning game, cut short by darkness. He gave up the one hit in the first inning when Jess Hays, lead-off man for the News, beat out a roller down second base way.

A big sixth inning in which they brought six runs across the plate enabled the Salem Chinas to trounce Nobil's Shoes. Up until the sixth frame, the Pottery mullballers held a one run lead and were in danger of losing out in their first start of the season.

Dale Ritchie, former star hurler for the Elks, went the full distance on the mound for the Chinas, allowing 11 hits. Joe King covered the pitching assignment for Nobil's and granted 14 hits.

Demings chalked up its 4-0 victory over the News without making an earned run. Pitcher Glen Whinnery of the News, who allowed but three hits in five innings, had a wild streak in the second frame and walked one man across the plate, while the other three Demings tallies were made possible on errors by News' infielders.

The Class A league will be idle today but will resume activity again Thursday evening with two games. The complete first round schedule for the league was announced today by Joe Kelley and appears elsewhere in this page.

Numerous errors marked Class B league games on the lower diamond at the park last evening as the Trinity Lutherans spanked the Methodists, 9 to 2, and the Presbyterians trounced the Baptists, 10 to 4. All told, 23 errors were made in the two games.

George Schmidt played an important part in the Trinity Lutheran victory, allowing Methodist batters only three hits. Smith and Thomas alternated in pitching for the M. E.'s, granting six hits.

Eleven errors by the Baptists boosted the Presbyterians along to their initial win of the season. The Presbyterians trailed the Baptists until the sixth inning when they brought five runs across the plate to practically sew up the win.

Braddock-Louis Bout May Flop

Apparent lack of public interest in the forthcoming bout between Jimmy Braddock and Joe Louis, and the lack of build-up for the fight, may result in the match proving "the flop of the century". Legal tangles have so involved the affair, and skepticism run so high over the ability of Braddock to withstand the murderous onslaught of the Brown Bomber, that the genius of a Tex Rickard appears necessary if a big gate is to attend the fight in Chicago in June.

MACKMEN OPEN 2-GAME SERIES WITH INDIANS

Athletics Will Display To Tribe Form That Put Them In Front

CLEVELAND, May 12. — Connie Mack's surprising Philadelphia Athletics—that conglomerate of cast-offs and rookies who hated all the experts out of the box in grabbing first place in the American league—rumbled into Cleveland today for a two-game series with the second-place Indians.

"I've got a hustling ball club that will not quit fighting," said the 74-year-old Mack, manager of the A's through fair and foul league weather every year since the club joined the junior circuit in 1901.

The Athletics, who had a taste of high altitude in their Mexico City training camp and then declined to return to the moss-lined cellar quarters they have occupied for two seasons running jumped into undisputed possession of first place yesterday by topping Detroit, 4-1, as Cleveland lost to Boston, 11-4.

The pitchers are doing great work, the batters are hitting in the pinches and our defense has been airtight," said Mack. "The team is not playing over its head and I believe that the boys will continue to be the surprise of the league."

Mack planned to start today his pitching ace of last year, tall, right-handed Larry Kelley, against Ivy Paul Andrews who blanked the New York Yankees with four hits Saturday.

League-Leading Bucs Boast Six Wins In Seven Starts On Eastern Route Journey

Cy Blanton Accounts For Sixth Win by Blanking Bees, 3-0; Philadelphia Athletics Place Selves At Top of American League

By BILL BONI
The National league-leading Pirates are playing no favorites.

They moved into the Polo Grounds today to help the Giants raise their 1936 pennant, boasting six victories in seven starts since they came east last Saturday.

They chalked up their sixth yesterday as Cy Blanton came up with a five-hitter that put a 3-0 damper on the Bees.

But the eastern clubs have proved little softer pickings for Pie Traynor's crew than the western teams before them. Only the Cardinals hold the edge on the Bucs, winning the only game played.

The Philadelphia Athletics have had similarly clear sailing on their western joy-ride. Perched on top of the American league as a result of their 4-1 trimming of the Tigers and Cleveland's fall before Boston by an 11-4 score, Connie Mack's galloping white elephants moved into Cleveland today with a record of six won in seven starts.

It was Rookie George Caster who pinned a four-hit drubbing on the Tigers, making it four straight defeats for Detroit and the first loss in five appearances for Rodie Lawson.

The Yankees dropped a 7-2 verdict to the White Sox, as Lou Gehrig failed to hit again, making it 20 straight fruitless trips to the plate.

In the other American league game, Jack Knott did a neat relief job for the Browns to top the Senators, 7-5. Pete Appleton, also appearing as a relief hurler, dropped his fourth game.

The Dodgers edged into the National league first division at the expense of the Cubs with a 9-7 defeat of the Cardinals.

Four home runs, including Dick Bartell's seventh of the season and Clyde Dell Castleman's four-hit hurling proved too much for the Cubs, the crippled Chicagoans bowing to the Giants, 10-1. The Reds went on another batting spree, collecting 16 hits, and whipped the Phillies, 12-3.

Washington—Jorge Brescia, 214½, Argentina, outpointed Marty Gallagher, 210, Washington, (10).

Terriers Take Tighter Grip On First As Akron Loses

COLUMBUS, May 11.—The Canton Terriers gripped the Mid-Atlantic league leadership a little more tightly today by virtue of Akron's defeat by the Zanesville Bees.

Canton, with three games won and one lost, did not play at Johnstown, Pa., last night as scheduled, because of cold weather, but Akron, which had three wins and two lost, played the short end of an 11 to 6 score and dropped a notch to fourth place from a tie for second.

Springfield stepped into a tie with Dayton for second place, edging out Charleston 6 to 5 while Dayton whipped Portsmouth 10 to 4. Zanesville advanced to third position.

Zanesville batted around in the third inning to bring in six runs on four hits, two of them doubles, two walks and an error. Akron made seven errors.

Dayton hammered three pitchers, including a big seventh inning when two singles and a double and two triples brought seven tallies across home plate.

The Springfield Indians scored steadily in four innings to counteract a threatening rally by the Sen-

INJURIES JINX TOLEDO SQUAD

Mud Hens Stay With Laders Despite Big Hospital List

CHICAGO, May 12.—For a team with almost as many regulars on the hospital list as the Chicago Cubs, Fred Haney's Toledo Mud Hens are doing a great job of staying up among the leaders in the American association.

Shortstop Jimmy Adair has been out with injuries, making all kinds of shifts necessary, yet the Hens, after taking the first game of the series from Kansas City, 6 to 5, yesterday, were in second place today. With Adair out, third baseman Pica Clifton has been playing second base, with second baseman Jack Croucher at shortstop.

Haney, a third baseman himself, has been unable to help out much because of a painful knee injury. Jack Burns, back in action yesterday after an attack of influenza, was replaced part of last week by Roy Cullenbine, an outfielder.

Yesterday Cullenbine started in left field, his regular position, but wound up playing third after Haney's bad knee gave way.

Milwaukee's Brewers continued their sensational winning streak by scoring five runs in the last two innings to come from behind and outcount Columbus, 6 to 5. The Red Birds worked up a lead off Forest Pressnell, and Ralph Winegarner who pitched the ninth for the Brewers, was credited with the victory. Max Macon who replaced Hank Gornicki in the ninth, walked in the winning run, but his predecessor was charged with the defeat.

Wet grounds prevented the series openers at Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, May 12.—Have the Senators asked waivers on Al Simmons? King Levinsky is represented at the coronation of King George by Harold Steinman, his manager. Mickey Cochrane calls Pitcher Rigney and Outfielder Steinbacher, both with the White Sox, two of the likeliest freshmen in the American league.

Max Schmeling will not have to return to Germany flightless even if Jim Braddock does stand Max up June 3. Rip Valente, Boston promoter, is offering Schmeling $50,000 to fight Al McCoy and Tom Gallery, the Los Angeles maestro, tops that by $10,000 for a bout between Max and the Bob Pastor-Bob Nestell winner. If Jack Dempsey lands the boxing privileges at Ebbets field this summer, he'll try to start with a lightweight title tilt between Lou Ambers and Pedro Montanez.

Joe Cronin wants a correction says New York newspaper men erred when they said Wes Ferrell has gone temperamental again and took himself out of a ball game. "Wes was going badly," said Joe. "He did not seem to have his stuff and with Tony Lazzeri at the bat we agreed that if Tony got on, Wes was through for the day. I ran to take the throw from the outfield and Wes walked off the field. . . . I was motioning to McKain to come in from the bull pen and finish the game. . . . there you are, Joseph."

Fannie A. Davidson, Wellsville, appointed administratrix of D. W. Davidson's estate, Wellsville.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Stanley and family spent Sunday with Mrs. Stanley's mother, Mrs. Emma Ittner of Millersburg.

"Rich Cargoes" by Henry C. Rowland

CHAPTER XIII

Jarvis' wife whose name was Flavia flowed over to where Sandy was leaning against the rail. He had observed already this quality of fluency in her. It was of speech, of gesture, the way she moved, just as gravity is the keynote of some people or levity or solidarity or flippancy. Flavia's was fluency. She would flow into empty places, possibly brim over full ones, he opined. It was an insidious process and apt to be complete, like the pouring of something plastic or molten into a mold. It was possible he thought that she occupied her husband's vacant premises that way to keep him from being a mere shell.

There came at this moment the spilling of what the Colonel had saved for a surprise, a sort of sleepy trumpeting that held a suggestion of repletion, vast content and a drowsy good night. Mouse had made a hole for his shoulder and was composing himself for the night.

"Mercy—" gasped Hester. "What's that?"

"If I was in India," Vinckers said, "I'd say it was an elephant. Used to hear the beggars bugle that way when I was painting the portraits of Rajahs and things."

The sound came again. This time followed by rumblings and gurglings unmistakable in that still night air to the ear of the uninitiated.

"My word," Vinckers cried, "that is an elephant or else I'm barmy. 'Daddy!' Hester exclaimed. 'It's not.'"

"It is though. Now that my coup de theatre is off," the Colonel admitted in the guilty tone of a small boy who has smuggled home a stray cat or dog he knows the family would not approve.

Sandy did not miss the quick look that passed from one to the other of the fresh arrivals or its significance. He was on the edge of announcing himself the author of this joke, saying that he had once heard the Colonel express his fondness for elephants and thought the island would be a perfect place for one, then caught Isobel's eye and held his peace. There was a short silence. Then Vinckers laughed and said casually in the way that a member of the family might attempt to glide over an infirmity of its head.

"So you decided to indulge your fancy, Colonel?"

Colonel Carlton seemed to stiffen in his chair.

"Well, why not?" he challenged. "The doctor says I'm not to ride a horse, if you want to know. A pony cart's too baby or senile, and there are no roads fit for a car. An elephant enables me to get about, and he added as if with deliberate malice—"a royal means of transportation—in keeping with my position here. If you'll excuse me I'll go to the chap over now he's bedded down."

He walked away to the end of the terrace. Hester followed him with her eye then breathed softly but distinctly: "Well, it's come!"

"What's come?" Sandy asked. Isobel thrust out her foot and pressed his warningly.

"What we've long feared. Already suspected. G. P. senile dementia."

"But why shouldn't the Colonel indulge his fancy? It strikes me this is a perfect place for an elephant. Right climate, no lack of fodder and lots of work the beast can do."

Jarvis gave a cackling laugh. "An elephant. My hat!"

"Oh shut up, Jarvis," Flavia said. "You should worry about the seawall. Molten money poured into blocks and for what?"

"Aren't you ever nervous here, Isobel?" Hester asked. "Sometimes," Isobel admitted in her silken voice. "Now."

"The beast is apt to get ugly if it's a male," Vinckers said. "They go musty. Run amuck."

"So do motor cars when driven by drunks," Isobel retorted. "Well, something ought to be done about it," Jarvis said. "Now my idea is—"

There came from a shadowed recess a harsh "Hell's bells."

The chatter had disturbed the repose of Jakko the white cockatoo. Jarvis gave a tremendous bound. The others laughed. Jarvis said softly: "There ought to be a man on this island—a white man—a resident."

"There is," said Isobel. "An Irishman named Mike. He's the mahout."

"Worse and more so," Vinckers groaned.

"That's not all that Uncle's got out here," Isobel said.

"What else?"

"He's got a goat. A big white Angora goat named Murphy. But Murphy's really mine, and he's going to take some getting."

This veiled challenge did not get

Jarvis gave a tremendous bound. The others laughed.

past unobserved. There was a moment's silence. Sandy felt that the family conclave was growing, for an outsider, thick. "I'll be getting out aboard," he said. He turned toward the lagoon, put a silver siren whistle to his lips and blew a wailing note. A few flashes of a blinker stabbed through the soft darkness. Hester said to Isobel: "You're letting him sleep aboard?"

"He wants to. He's writing a book on the Fourth Dimension which he says is the vehicle of love. Married love and family love and—oh, well—love. He came here to get some points. Sharp ones."

"Well, it's pleasant weather for it," Flavia said.

Sandy wished them good night and started down for the landing. Half way there he heard the click of heels and looked round to see Isobel following him.

"Aren't they dreadful? Hardly land before they get out their little hammers. Those rubber kind the doctors use to percuss you with."

"The doctors don't use them on your head," Sandy objected. Isobel laughed. Vinckers' big voice called from the terrace: "Eight bells... change the watch."

"They heard his chairlegs squeak on the tiles as he shoved it back to rise. Isobel answered: 'As you were. The dog watch isn't called in port.'"

"That," Sandy said, "was hot. Let's hope it burns through, though the hide of the hyena is tough. I understand a little better why he's not so glad to find me here."

"Some men would like to press a button that would release a current to kill all the other men in the world in their tracks," Isobel said. "Vinckers is that sort. Also he counts too much on a convent education. He forgets that I visited at the chateaux of friends."

"That's only a part of his lapse of memory," Sandy answered. "Or perhaps he chooses to ignore the fact that he hasn't pushed that button yet. Something tells me that I may still be needed here."

"I'm beginning to think you may be right," Isobel admitted. "Uncle may need you to keep him reminded that he is no esoteric philosopher living on a plane undisturbed by family jars... and I may need you to keep me reminded that I am a woman and not a cat."

"You may be both, with me for your ball of yarn," Sandy assured her. "I can stand the snarling if it is done with purrs. And if at any time you feel the need of scratching bark, just fly at me."

"That holds the promise of a precious thought!"
